

Escape into the Enchanting Realm of "Salt on Your Tongue: Women and the Sea"

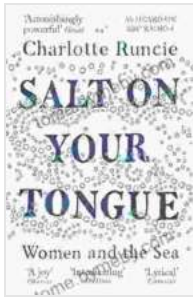

In "Salt on Your Tongue: Women and the Sea," acclaimed writer and sailor Lucy Birmingham curates a mesmerizing tapestry of stories, essays, and poems that explore the multifaceted relationship between women and the ocean. From ancient mariner folklore to modern-day seafaring adventurers, this anthology celebrates and interrogates the enduring bond that has connected women with the vast expanse of blue.

Through the contributions of over 50 extraordinary writers and artists, "Salt on Your Tongue" offers a chorus of unique voices that speak to the power, fear, wonder, and solace found in the embrace of the sea.

- Nancy Lord recounts her record-breaking solo voyage across the Pacific Ocean, capturing the thrill and solitude of life aboard a small boat.
- Linda Hogan's lyrical prose paints a poignant portrait of the Native American women who harvested clams on the coast of Puget Sound.
- Margaret Atwood offers a haunting reflection on the drowning of Ophelia, exploring the intersection of gender, madness, and the watery depths.

"Salt on Your Tongue" delves into the complex ways in which gender, identity, and the sea intersect. Through compelling narratives, the anthology examines:
