

Hitler's Hangman: The Life of Heydrich, the Architect of the Holocaust

Reinhard Heydrich was one of the most powerful and feared men in Nazi Germany. As head of the SS, he was responsible for the implementation of the Final Solution, the Nazi plan to exterminate the Jews of Europe. Heydrich was also a key figure in the Night of the Long Knives, the purge of the SA, and the Kristallnacht pogrom. He was assassinated in Prague in 1942 by Czech resistance fighters.

Hitler's Hangman is a biography of Heydrich that draws on new research to provide a comprehensive and nuanced portrait of this complex and contradictory figure. The book explores Heydrich's early life, his rise to power within the Nazi Party, and his role in the Holocaust. It also examines his personal life, his relationships with his family and colleagues, and his motivations for carrying out his crimes.
