From social enterprises to tech startups, women-owned businesses are making a significant impact on the global economy. In fact, according to the American Express 2019 State of Women-Owned Businesses Report, women-owned businesses in the United States generated $1.8 trillion in revenue and employed 9.4 million people in 2019.

But it's not just about the numbers. Women entrepreneurs are also using their businesses to create positive social and environmental change. For example, the TOMS Shoes company was founded by Blake Mycoskie in 2006 with the mission of providing shoes to children in need. Since then,

TOMS has donated over 100 million pairs of shoes to children in over 70 countries.

Another example is Warby Parker, an eyeglasses company founded in 2010 by Neil Blumenthal, Andrew Hunt, David Gilboa, and Jeffrey Raider. Warby Parker has a buy-a-pair, give-a-pair program that has donated over 10 million pairs of eyeglasses to people in need around the world.

These are just a few examples of the many women entrepreneurs who are making a difference in the world. Their stories are inspiring and motivating, and they show us that anything is possible if we have the courage to follow our dreams.
